LORD KITCHENER

LOST WITH PERSONAL STAFF

ABOARD H.M.S. HAMPSHIRE

MINED OR TORPEDOED

WEST OF THE ORKNEYS

EN ROUTE FOR RUSSIA

Consternation was caused yesterday by the publication of the news that Lord Kitchener and his personal staff had been lost owing to the mining or torpedoing of a British warship.

It appears that Lord Kitchener was on his way to Petrograd on an important mission, and was travelling by the cruiser Hampshire.

During a heavy sea, when the cruiser was west of the Orkney Islands, she was blown up either by a mine or a torpedo, and it is believed that all on board perished.

Rescue vessels found nothing but bodies of men who had been on board, and all hope of finding any survivors has been abandoned.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

The following cable from the Secretary of State for the Colonies has been received by His Excellency the Governor-General:

LONDON, June 6.

Deeply regret to inform you that H.M.S. Hampshire, proceeding to Russia with Lord Kitchener and staff on board, was sunk by mine or torpedoed west of the Orkneys last night in a heavy sea.

There is little hope of any survivors.

(Signed) BONAR LAW.

LONDON, June 6.

An official message was received in London this afternoon from Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, stating that the cruiser Hampshire, 10,850 tons, on which Lord Kitchener and his staff were proceeding on an important visit to Russia, was mined or torpedoed west of the Orkneys during a heavy sea.

Four boats left the ship.

Rescue vessels only found bodies. There is no hope of any survivors.

Sir John Jellicoe adds: A north-north-west wind prevailed with heavy seas running. As the patrols and destroyers have searched the whole shore from seaward there is little hope of any survivors.

No report has yet been received from the search party ashore.

LONDON SHOCKED.

GREAT MAN AND A GREAT SOLDIER.

LONDON, June 6.

London was staggered on reading the official announcement that Lord Kitchener had been drowned, contained on the front pages of the evening papers. The news reached London at lunch-time. Thousands of people were in the streets, and many meetings and demonstrations were held.

Many meetings and demonstrations were held. The news was met with a feeling of grief and sorrow. Many meetings and demonstrations were held. The news was met with a feeling of grief and sorrow. Many meetings and demonstrations were held.

merely that there was little hope of any survivors.

A communique from the War Office, issued at 9 p.m., banished all hopes, as it announced the postponement of an official exhibition of warlike "owing to the death of Lord Kitchener."

KING'S REGRET.

ARMY ORDER ISSUED.

The King hurriedly returned to town, and summoned Mr. Asquith to the Palace. His Majesty subsequently issued an army order, expressing profound regret at the loss of Lord Kitchener, who, he said, gave 45 years of distinguished service to the State.

"It is largely due to his administrative genius and unswerving energy," the order continues, "that the country has been able to create and place in the field the armies which to-day are upholding the traditional glories of the Empire. Lord Kitchener will be mourned by the army as a great soldier, who, under unexampled difficulties, rendered supreme and devoted service to the army and State."

His Majesty directs all officers to wear mourning for a week from the 7th instant.

THE PARTY.

The War Office state that Lord Kitchener's party consisted of—Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzgerald, Military Secretary.

Brigadier-General Ellershaw, Lieutenant MacPherson, Mr. H. J. O'Brien, of the Foreign Office, Sir H. F. Donaldson, Advisor to the Ministry of Munitions.

Mr. L. Robertson, of Ministry of Munitions, Detective MacLaughlin, of Scotland Yard.

Five personal servants and clerks. Two of Lord Kitchener's staff were well known in Australia. Sir H. F. Donaldson, advisor to the Ministry of Munitions, son of the first Premier of New South Wales, has done great service as technical advisor to the Ministry of Munitions.

Lieut.-Colonel O. A. G. Fitzgerald (Personal Secretary) accompanied Lord Kitchener to Australia and New Zealand in 1909.

The Press Bureau since making the announcement that Lord Kitchener was to visit Russia, says the War Office has been requested by Lord Kitchener, Mr. H. J. O'Brien, Sir H. F. Donaldson, and General Ellershaw to take an opportunity of discussing important military and financial questions.

EMPIRE RESOLVED.

TO FIGHT ON.

Mr. T. J. Ryan, Premier of Queensland, when interviewed said that Lord Kitchener's death should not retard the downfall of the accepted murderer.

Over Kitchener's grave the Empire must stand firmly resolved to fight on until ceasing.

WAR COUNCIL.

The War Council was immediately summoned and sat for two hours. General Sir William Robertson, Sir Edward Grey, Mr. McKenna, and Mr. Lloyd George attended.

SPY QUESTION.

FIRM HANDLING URGED.

Commander Bellairs, M.P., when interviewed, insisted upon the necessity for handling the spy question on the strongest lines.

The whole country, he urged, should be made a war zone. When Lord Reading came back from America he was accompanied by destroyers. "I hope," he added, "that Lord Kitchener, who was a priceless asset to the country, was similarly protected."

An exciting scene occurred on the Stock Exchange. Members shouted: "This is the work of spies. Shall we any longer tolerate German-born members in our midst?" There was much cheering. There is a likelihood of the campaign against German stockbrokers being reopened.

FRANCE.

WILL NEVER FORGET.

M. Briand, Premier of France, sent the following message of condolence to Mr. Asquith—"All France mourns the loss of a great chief, who raised such a magnificent British army. France will never forget the fertile organizer who fought forty-six years ago in the French army."

BRAIN OF THE ARMY.

News of Lord Kitchener's death ran like wildfire through the city.

The French regarded him as the brain of the British army. The news caused as great a shock as if General Joffre had been killed.

NEWSPAPER EXPRESSIONS.

The tragic passing of the great soldier, who won the quiet confidence of democracy, and proved he had the confidence of the Empire, has evoked profound grief.

Throughout the country the newspapers publish elaborate biographies and many personal sketches. There are many tributes from Allied countries.

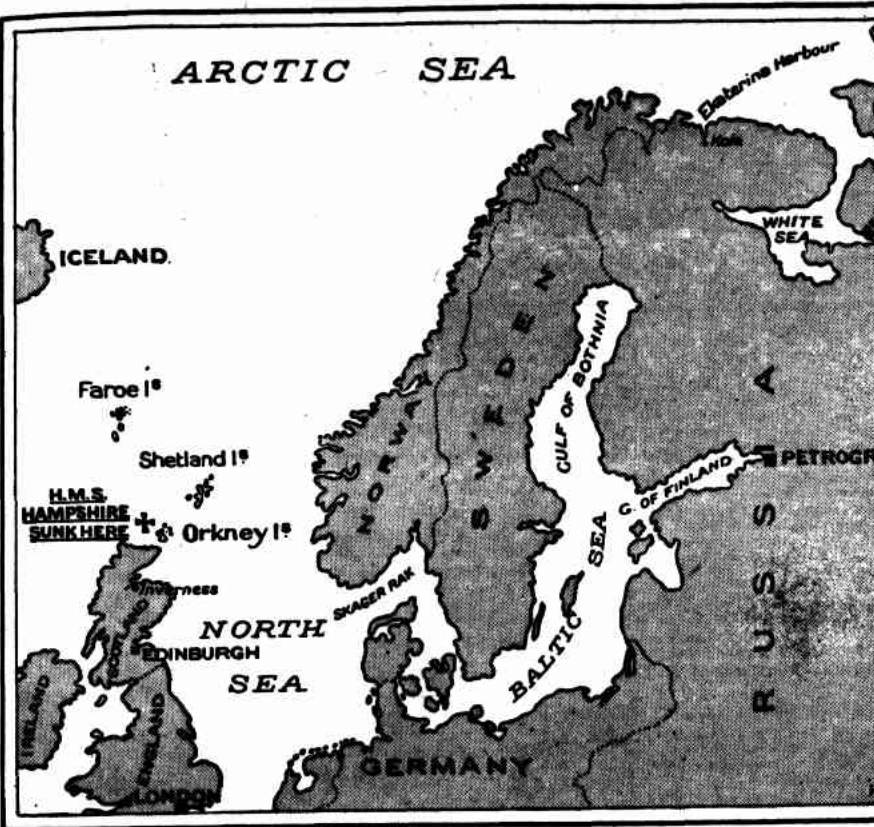

The "Times" says: "Lord Kitchener lived in harness as befits one of the most strenuous and unswerving workers. The great army he called into being are his living monument."

"The Daily Mail" says: "Lord Kitchener had a career of romantic distinction. Undoubtedly he was a great servant of the State." It adds: "News of his departure may have reached the enemy, and demands the interment of all allies."

"HE DID HIS DUTY."

Lord Rosebery, addressing convalescent soldiers at Woodcroft Park, Epsom, said that the Prussians claimed a victory over the Skagerrak battle, they were welcome to many such victories. The British sailors died a glorious death, and he was confident their death had sown the seeds of victory.

WHERE THE HAMPSHIRE WENT DOWN.

Earl Kitchener and his staff, who went down with H.M.S. Hampshire, were proceeding to Russia on a mission of great importance. The spot where the Hampshire sank is shown, west of the Orkney Islands.

vidence of his own nation, the dominions, and our Allies. His epitaph should be "He did his duty."

MR. HUGHES'S TRIBUTE.

Mr. Hughes returned to London on Wednesday evening. Commenting on the death of Lord Kitchener, he said—"It is a dreadful shock to the whole Empire. The Dominions mourn equally with Britain. Australia owed him much. He laid the foundation of our defence scheme. Amongst the host of foolish optimists, Lord Kitchener stood out, and realised that a life and death struggle must continue until our whole energies are thrown in. He accomplished a herculean task in raising an army numbering millions. At a critical juncture the Empire had his guiding hand, and greatest leader. We can best show how deeply we deplore his loss by pressing on more resolutely."

THE ORKNEYS.

The Secretary of State for Home Affairs has issued an order, which has been gazetted, making it necessary for persons proceeding to the Orkneys to obtain permission from the military authority at Kirkwall.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A memorial service will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral on the 14th.

GREAT CAREER.

MAN OF IRON WILL.

Lord Kitchener—"K" as they always called him in the service—the Empire's foremost soldier, whose death has so profoundly shocked everybody, was within a fortnight of his 66th year.

Born at Ballinglongford, County Kerry, Ireland, Lord Kitchener came of a military family, his father having been a lieutenant-colonel of the 13th Dragoons. He received his baptism of fire a year before he had reached manhood. This, and it is a fact of which many people seem to be unaware, was in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. He had joined the French army of the Loire as a volunteer, and was in the retreat from La Maun. An attack of pneumonia prevented him from joining the campaign against the Prussians, and he returned to England. He entered the Royal Engineers in 1871. From 1874 to 1878 he was employed on the Palestine survey, and from then until 1882 on the Cyprus survey, acting from 1879 to 1880 as vice-consul in Anatolia. He commanded the Egyptian Cavalry from 1882 to 1884, and served in the Sudan campaign of 1885 to 1886.

Meanwhile his promotion had been exceptionally rapid. Attaining the rank of captain in 1885, he became major in 1886, and in the following year lieutenant-colonel, in recognition of his services in the Nile expedition, for which also he received frequent mention in despatches, the medal and clasp of the third class of the Order of Osmanieh and the Khedive's Star. For years Egypt was a theatre of little wars, and Kitchener was at one time engaged in all sorts of capacities, learning the country, learning the people, and from then until 1888 on the Cyprus survey, acting from 1879 to 1880 as vice-consul in Anatolia. He commanded the Egyptian Cavalry from 1882 to 1884, and served in the Sudan campaign of 1885 to 1886.

"KITCHENER'S ARMIES."

To describe the career of Kitchener from the time that he became Minister for War is to describe a triumph of organisation—the building up from nothing, within 18 months, of the huge armies Britain possessed to-day. The facts of the people in the new Minister were remarkable. He said, at once, that the country must prepare for a three years' war, at least, and in spite of a very general belief that "it would be over in 12 months," one questioned that dictum.

Without a moment's loss of time, the creation of the new armies was commenced. On August 6, on Lord Kitchener's behalf, Mr. Asquith asked the House of Commons to sanction the extreme needs of the war. The regular army, the men to join for three years or for the period of the war, which ever was the shorter term. Practically the whole of these men were obtained within a month. Of September 11, the enlistment of a further 500,000 was sanctioned. This number again was quickly forthcoming. And so army was added to army, and the unprepared task, involving insuperable difficulties, of feeding, housing, and equipping these growing millions, together with the urgent duty of reinforcing the armies abroad, and keeping them properly fed and supplied with munitions, fell upon the Minister for War.

His "MAIDEN" SPEECH.

Kitchener made his first speech as War Minister—which was also his maiden speech in Parliament—in the House of Commons on August 25. It was a plain, soldier-like statement of the position. The Empire with whom we are at war," he said, "have called to the colours almost the entire male population. The principle we, on our part, shall observe is this: That while their maximum force undergoes a constant diminution, the reinforcements we prepare shall steadily and unceasingly flow out until we have an army in the field which, in numbers, not less than in quality, will be not unworthy of the power and responsibility of the British Empire."

In his speech in reply Lord Kitchener referred to Sydney's magnificent harbour, which formed the headquarters of the British fleet in these waters. "It is on the navy," said the great soldier, "that you must rely in the first instance to frustrate any designs of an enemy upon the isolated portions of your territory, and keep open safe communication with other parts of the world, the widespread Empire, and to protect the ever-increasing commercial interests of this great country."

How prophetic these words were was shown in the early days of this present war, when only our own navy saved us from a visitation by enemy warships. Lord Kitchener added:—"It is, however, essential that the navy be always ready to go against any enemy without any apprehension of the security of their dockyards and magazines. Complete security of this sort can only be obtained by efficient fixed defences, supported by a mobile and efficient land force."

MINISTER FOR WAR.

Lord Kitchener became British Secretary of State for War on August 5, 1914, and was formally sworn in by the King on August 6. There were two unusual features connected with his appointment. First, it was believed that, for political reasons, the Asquith Government considered with reluctance the appointment of an Agent-General to Egypt. It is certain that on August 2, when the shadow of the great war already lay over Europe, it was formally announced that Kitchener was to return immediately for his appointment. It was stated that his departure might be delayed for a day or two, owing to interruption of train and steamer services; but on that same afternoon Kitchener had not as far as the Government was concerned, left for his post.

KANSAS CITY (Missouri), June 7.
The death-roll in the storm-swept sections of Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi, and Illinois has reached nearly 100.

of persons are still unaccounted for. Hundreds were injured, many of whom will die. An accurate estimate of the property damage is impossible, but it will run into hundreds of thousands of pounds. Only meagre reports are to hand owing to the dislocation of communication.

AMERICAN PRESIDENCY.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

CHICAGO, June 6.

Mr. Hughes is momentarily favourite for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has a dominating influence, and is expected to dictate the platform. He will have a deciding voice in the selection of the candidate.

OBITUARY.

YUAN SHIH KAI.

LONDON, June 4.

The death took place on Monday of Yuan Shih Kai, President of the Chinese Republic.

Yuan Shih Kai died from uræmia through prostration.

He was attended by three French and a number of Chinese Doctors. The funeral clared that his illness was complicated by varying the treatment, their instructions being ignored.

Li Yuan Hung has been appointed temporary President.
